HESS PUT ON TRIAL UNDER WATCH FOR POSSIBLE WEAPON

Detectives Appear at Side of Suspended Police Captain
After Acting Chief Questions Him About Arms.

MANSUR CLASHES WITH ATKINSON

"That's a Lie," He Says
When Counsel Declares
Board Ordered Guard—
Woman First Witness.

William C. Hess, suspended Captain of the Laclede Avenue District, went to trial before the Police Board today on charges of immorality and unbecoming conduct, with two detectives closely watching him with the announced purpose of guarding against the possibility that he was armed.

Shortly before the trial opened at 10:35 a. m. Acting Chief O'Brien had a whispered conversation with Hess, after which the latter entered the room and took places near the defendant Captain.

John M. Atkinson, attorney for Hess, after a formal motion to dismiss the charges had been overruled, said to the board members:

"Acting Chief O'Brien has asked my client if he was armed, and this board has stationed two detectives to guard him. I demand that my client be searched. He is not armed."

Objection by Mansur.

President Mansur of the Board replied: "You have stated a deliberate lie. The board did not order these detectives placed in the room. You will have to withdraw that statement."

"Well," said Atkinson, "the Chief of Police placed them here for the purpose of intimidating my client."

"The Chief told us he was going to put the detectives here, and he gave sufficient reason for it," said Mansur. "The board told him he had a right to do this and the board will not interfere with the removal of the detectives."

Mansur then asserted that Atkinson had taken advantage of every opportunity to accuse the board and to offend it with insulting remarks, said Mansur. Atkinson, who if this continued he would be removed from the room.

Woman First Witness.

"If necessary, my client and I will both withdraw and appeal to the courts," replied Atkinson.

Before his trial started Hess reminded his friends that he would have been in the Police Department 44 years next April, and that while he believes his claims for re-instatement are hopeless, he seeks to vindicate himself before the public, rather than accept Acting Chief O'Brien's proposal to accept his resignation.

Irene Gibson, the first witness, testified that in the spring of 1916, when she lived at 4204 Olive, Special Officer Barton of the Newstead avenue district called on her and told her Capt. Hess wanted to see her at his office at the police station.

She went there, she said, and Capt. Hess took her into his private office and closed the door and said to her: "You will have to move."

When she asked him why, she said, he replied: "Maybe we will be able to fix it up."

Says Hess Tried to Carress Her.

She testified that Capt. Hess then put his arm around her waist and attempted to carress her and said to her: "Never mind, little girl, maybe you won't have to move." She was crying, she said, and Capt. Hess handed her a powder puff and a box of powder and told her to powder her nose. He then led her to a side door of the station, leading into an alley, she said, and on reaching the door he invited her to come and see him again.

Upon cross-examination, Irene Gibson said that she now lived at the Harlan Court Apartments, at 5463 Delmar boulevard, but declined to say with whom she lived. She testified that she had never been known by other than her own name, such as Goldie Jones.

She declared that she told no one except her sister, with whom she lived at the Olive street address, of the incident in Capt. Hess' office. She said that her sister was married, the wife of a railroad man now in California.

Made No Report to Chief.

Asked why she did not report, as she said her sister advised, of Capt. Hess' attitude to the Chief of Police, she replied that she didn't want any cheap notoriety.

She then was asked how the Police Board happened to have knowledge of the incident at this time and Constable Givadin interrupted, asking the witness that she did not have to answer the question, that it was improper.

Atkinson replied that the question was proper, that he was endeavoring to get the facts.

Anna of 1915 Sidney street, have received letters written by him as recently as Nov. 23, in which he said he was well, and had not been wounded. The notification as to his supposed death was sent to an acquaintance, Miss Catherine Pfeffer, formerly of 2906A Shenandoah avenue, now of Columbia, Ill. and it said he was killed in action Aug. 4.

THREE EAST ST. LOUIS
MEN KILLED IN ACTION

MAX SUMNER

GEORGE H. KAEMMERER

GEORGE H. KAEMMERER
and Max Sumner, comrades in C
Company, 3d Battalion, Tank
Corps, both residents of East St.

Louis, were killed Sept. 29 in the Argonne battle.

Their relatives expect eventually to obtain from Ora Moore, another East St. Louis member of the same company, a full account of the fac-tality. He has told the story in part in letters, and has said that the tank to which the two were attached was wrecked by an explosion. Other accounts indicate that the tank was blown up by a mine in the roadway.

Kaemmerer was 31 years old, an employee of the Aluminum Ore Co., and was a brother of Mrs. Joseph Friess of 520 North Twenty-sixth street, East St. Louis. Sumner was 24, a railroad brakeman, and a son of L. M. Sumner of 1514 College avenue. Their deaths have been previously announced in the Post-Dispatch.

The death of Abe Muchneck of A Company, 341st Machine Gun Battalion, also previously announced, is described in a letter written by Capt.
John Dross of the company to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Asher Much-neck of 1463 St. Clair avenue, East St. Louis. He said Muchneck was one of four men on guard when the Germans made a night attack with artillery. A shell, bursting over their heads, killed Muchneck and one of his comrades, and wounded the others severely. The place of burial, the Captain said, was the military cemetery at Menil La Four, and the grave is marked and cared for. Muchneck was formerly proprietor of a grocery store on Collinsville avenue.

BRITAIN SAID TO BE WORRIED ABOUT RUSSIAN SITUATION

London Paper's View Question Is So Urgent Peace Conference Will Discuss It First.

By the Associated Press. LONDON, Jan. 2.—Russian affairs are causing the British Foreign Office considerable anxiety, says the Mail. The necessity of formulating a definite allied policy as to Russia, is extremely urgent and it has been decided that the Russian question will be the first to be discussed at the peace conference, it is said.

"It is presumed that all the allied nations are overwhelmingly against armed intervention by an expeditionary force," says the newspaper. "The British Government has also decided that an expedition is impossible, preferring to encourage the creation of a stable government in Russia, although the origin of such a government is at present quite obscure. In the meantime, munitions and instructors are being sent to the true Russian armies in the South, Siberia, and forces on the borders of Poland and Finland. Large cargoes of food were recently sent to Northern Russia for the people living in districts under allied control. There is no likelihood of the allied forces on the Russian coast being withdrawn."

Americans Recapture Kadish, Advance Towards Volodga. By the Associated Press. ARCHANGEL, Tuesday, Dec. 31.—American troops yesterday recaptured the village of Kadish, on the middle sector of the northern Russian front, and today pushed forward their lines a distance of two miles south of the village in the direction of Volodga.

This winter's push, which was against strong resistance, was undertaken simultaneously with a movement southward by the allied troops along the Onega River. The Onega column rested today at the village of Gogol.

The recapture of Kadish was marked by some heavy fighting, in which, however, the American casualties were light. This village, which is located about midway between the Volodga Railway and the Dvina River, was strongly defended and the Bolsheviks there used the blockhouses built by the Americans and British when they occupied the town in November prior to being driven out by large forces of Bolsheviks.

Cross Frozen River. Beginning Monday morning, with an artillery attack, the Americans advanced across the frozen Emata River, where their positions have for more than a month been located in icy dugouts on the bank of the stream, bordering the destroyed bridge at the crossing of the Petrograd road. They crossed the stream and cleared the Bolshevik trenches and machine gun emplacements on the opposite bank.

The American men pushed forward two miles to the village, fighting their way under the protection of Canadian artillery, which was able to place shells almost at will in Kadish.

The fur-clad American flanking parties in the frozen swamps bordering on the road contributed materially to the American success.

The recapture of Kadish gives the American troops a good winter position in the blockhouses they have built. Since the retirement from the town early in November, the troops on this sector had virtually no shelter, the front line being unable to build fires for fear of the artillery and snipers on the opposite bank of the narrow Emata River.

Preparation for yesterday's attack on Kadish was carried out under conditions met with nowhere except in a semi-arctic wilderness. The Onega column, in reaching Gogol, apparently obtained fully the objective of its winter push southward. A battery of heavy howitzers had to be brought on sleighs 30 miles on a rough trail through the wilderness.

Americans, Friendly Russians and Poles Advance 14 Miles. By the Associated Press. ARCHANGEL, Monday, Dec. 30.—An allied force composed of Americans, Russians and Poles yesterday advanced 14 miles southward along the road bordering the Onega River. They met with considerable resistance from the Bolsheviks, but captured more than a dozen villages and did not halt until they had taken the village of Gogol.

The advance, the first attempt of the winter, was carried out under semi-arctic conditions and in the few hours of daylight which obtain in this region. The village of Gogol is approximately 80 miles south of the town of Onega and about 40 miles west of the frozen swamp which forms the allied positions along the Volodga railroad. The road along which the allies advance leads in the general direction of Volodga and crosses the railway line at an important strategic center from which the Bolsheviks have been operating.

Samuel Greenberg, 82 years old, of 3130 Bell avenue, died yesterday at the City Hospital from injuries suffered December 24 when he slipped on the ice at Grand avenue and Delmar boulevard, while on his way to visit a granddaughter. Mrs. Jessie Greenberg, 4645 Delmar boulevard. He had fractured two ribs and suffered internal lacerations.

Earthquake Is Recorded. LAWRENCE, Kan., Jan. 2.—An earthquake was recorded on the seismograph at Kansas University, beginning at 9:13 o'clock yesterday morning. The main wave began at 9:23. It was estimated that the quake was 2100 miles distant.

NEW YEAR'S DAY QUIET AFTER ROLLING NIGHT CELEBRATION

Morning Church Services, Evening Crowds Generally at Hotels, Clubs and Restaurants.

An atmosphere of quiet enveloped the city yesterday, following the rollicking New Year's eve celebration, and that part of St. Louis which was not in bed, went for the most part, to church yesterday morning.

Many found the brisk air in the afternoon good for their ailments, and automobiles and pedestrians were plentiful after 2 p. m. Theaters and picture houses were crowded both afternoon and evening. Hotels, clubs and restaurants, which were virtually deserted all day, were filled with quiet diners in the evening.

On New Year's eve the same excessive good humor that has marked all holiday celebrations since the armistice began, was present. The incident of a policeman, two soldiers, a bellhop and an elderly man in full dress with their heads together in a corner of the Jefferson Hotel lobby at 5 a. m. singing "Smiles" was illustrative of the general feeling.

How to Keep Strong and Healthy

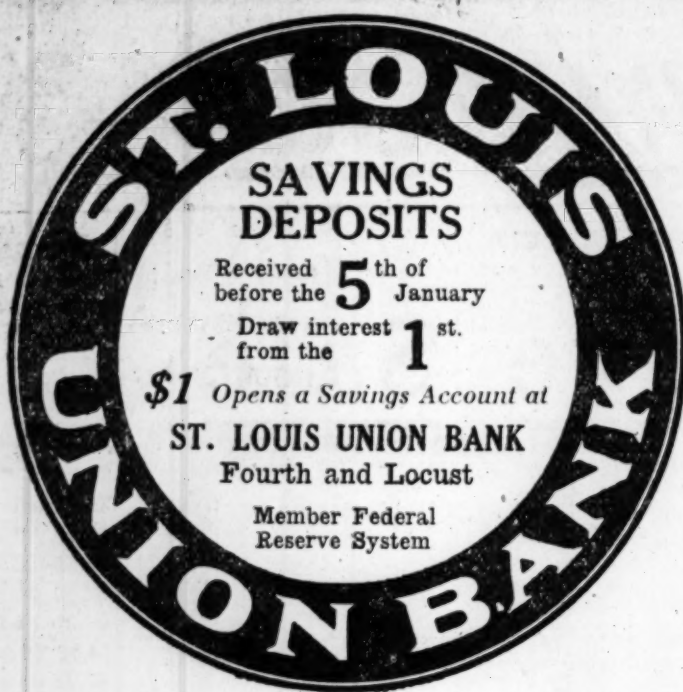

Thinks Epidemic of "Flu" Found Many With Low Vitality. Matter of Precaution—Take Tonic of Iron, Herbs and Roots.

If your health is perfect this may not interest you. If your health is not perfect, logically you are either sick or "partially sick." If sick, if you need a doctor's advice and medicine. If "partially sick" you surely will benefit by taking a real medicine tonic, containing no alcohol or habit-forming drugs. If you are weak, nervous, tired, sluggish and get no strength from your food you need a tonic.

If neuralgia pains, headache, backache, stomach distress assail you—a tonic is your crying need. If irritable, hysterical, sleepless and you worry and fret without reason you need a tonic. If you are thin, anemic, "bloodless" and ill nourished; if you catch cold too easily; if you tire with slight exertion and you are melancholy because of your inability to live and enjoy life as others do, surely a tonic of iron, root and herb extracts will help you.

Thousands like you, have found strength and cheerfulness by taking three grain Cadomene Tablets, the tried formula of a good physician.

If "partially sick" you may increase your risk of fatal ailments attacking your weakened vitality. Be sensible and wise by toning up your health; right now is the time to begin. Ask your druggist for Cadomene Tablets and take as directed by the directions.

FRANCE PLANS TO ASSUME RULE OVER ASIA MINOR

Foreign Minister Pichon Explains Procedure Intended Unless Peace Conference Settlement Wills Otherwise.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Tuesday, Dec. 31.—France plans to assume the guidance of the destinies of Armenia, Syria and Lebanon in the new order of world affairs growing out of the war in conformity with the plan of the Great Britain and Russia in 1915. If the coming peace conference does not rule otherwise, according to authoritative information furnished the Associated Press.

Palestine according to the plan under consideration, would, with its complexity of nationalities and religions, be placed under international protection. England would be responsible for the Arabian peninsula, with the exception of the British mandate of Mesopotamia, which would be free.

France, it is emphatically stated, eschews the term "protectorate" in connection with her proposed supervision of these countries, and it is probable that some such relations with them as exists between England and her dominions would be established under the plan.

These facts were given as an explanation of a declaration of Stephen Pichon, Foreign Minister, in the Chamber of Deputies on Sunday, referring to the manner in which France would deal with Asia Minor and nationalities formerly ruled by Turkey.

Attitude Toward Turks.

"We have nothing but friendly feelings for the Turks, and we have testified to them in protecting subjugated nations in the Ottoman empire over which we have century-old rights. Our rights are incontestable in America, Syria, Lebanon and Palestine. They are based on historic conventions and on more recent contracts. While admitting the entire liberty of the peace conference to deal with the subject, we consider our rights are fully established by our agreements with Great Britain."

The Foreign Minister's reference to "historic conventions" may be understood when taken as relating to long-standing treaties of capitulation between France and the Ottoman empire, through which France protected the interests of Christians in the countries in question. The statements as to "agreements with Great Britain," however, is not so clear. An explanation of this as given by an authority on the subject was in substance as follows:

"From the beginning of the ascendancy of Mohammedan power in Asia Minor until the outbreak of the present war, France, through treaties with Turkey, had assumed the special protection of Christian interests under Ottoman rule. As evidence of the good will of France in this matter, it is cited that about the middle of the last century she sent an armed expedition into Lebanon to enforce demands made on behalf of the Christians in that country. Moreover, in Syria, since the tenth century, the general language and customs have been French, while in Syria, Lebanon and Armenia the religious orders of France have maintained large Christian establishments."

Terms of Agreement.

"When the world war broke out the problem of the future of Asia Minor arose, the assumption of which naturally being that the allies would win. It was agreed at that time that France was entitled to guide the affairs of Syria, Lebanon and Armenia. On the other hand, since Turkey assumed responsibility for other territories in Asia Minor which have not been deeded publicly up to this time."

"In 1915 a treaty was signed between England and France embodying these ideas. The phraseology of this treaty was kept clear of such terms as 'protectorate,' 'colonization' and 'zone of influence,' it is stated. The compact, however, was France is concerned, merely recognized the right of the Government to develop and promote civilization in the regions mentioned."

"Later, another treaty was signed along similar lines by England, France and Russia. Just what part Russia intended to play may never be known because the collapse of that empire ended her aspirations. It is stated, however, that she originally showed an inclination to annex a part of Armenia."

"The boundaries for the proposed activities of France appear to have been left without absolute definition. It was agreed that Syria and Armenia, which are inhabited by various nationalities and include both Moslems and Christians, were not in a position to be given ruling power. They must have guidance in the establishment of a new state or states."

"In Arabian territory the situation was different, owing to the greater unification of the people, and here the question of which action should be taken by the protective Powers is not defined."

Problems in Palestine.

"Palestine furnished a problem in itself. It is made up not only of many nationalities, but it has been the birthplace of diverse old religions. In addition, the situation is complicated by the tendencies of the Zionists to establish a home in Palestine. With the divergence in religious views to deal with, it seemed impossible to place Palestine under the guidance of any one of the great Powers, so it was decided that this country should come under an international protectorate."

Colds and Influenza

If the doctor's first question to a patient is "are the bowels regular?" doesn't it seem worth while to keep them regular all the time?

What the doctor fears is this: If the bowels are clogged with food-waste, fermentation is certain to be filling the body with dangerous poisons. If the kidneys, lungs and skin pores have all they can do to rid the body of these poisons, how are they going to throw disease out of the system?

As the doctor invariably recommends the use of a saline cathartic, why not take his advice and keep your bowels free from food-waste?

Your druggist has a new product called SALINOS, which is a thorough laxative. It will completely empty the bowels, including the lower bowel where most poisons are created.

It is pleasant in taste and action and fully effective if taken in cold water. You can get a bottle of SALINOS for a quarter (larger sizes for 50c and a dollar).

Be safe! Get it today. Use it tomorrow morning.—ADV.

HER ENGAGEMENT HAS

Miss Jane Hagnauer

HUNDREDS OF WOMEN
TO MEET TOMORROW

Reconstruction Gathering Will Be Held at Central High School Auditorium at 3 O'Clock.

HUNDREDS of women from every part of the city will attend the big reconstruction meeting which has been called by Mrs. George A. Bass at the Central High School Auditorium for tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. This will perhaps be the last large meeting of the women who have taken such an active interest in the United States Food Administration and whose roster contains the names of nearly every woman of prominence in the city.

Mrs. Bass, who is chairman of the Organization and Investigation Division of the Federal Food Administration for St. Louis, and whose plans have been copied by many cities all over the country, feels strongly that there is still a big work for women in food conservation and that as long as there are starving millions in European countries the American woman must continue to do her share in feeding them.

A program will be outlined at the meeting tomorrow which, while it will not call for the arduous service many have given the Food Administration in the past, will give all who care to, an opportunity to share in the new food conservation program.

A statement sent out from Mr. Hoover recently which briefly puts the food problem up to all of us is as follows: "America's food resources are not ours alone, but a trust for the healing of nations, for defense against hunger and famine, for a witness to our faith that all mankind is one family."

Miss Edna Kissinger, head of the home demonstration agents; Melville Wilkinson and W. F. Gephart will speak at the meeting, which will open with a community sing under the direction of the War Camp Community Service and will close with an informal reception.

Assisting Mrs. Bass will be Meses. William A. Scudder, W. B. Ver Steeg, H. P. Fritsch, Ottmar Moll, James Avery Webb, T. W. Hardy, J. F. Murphy, E. W. LaBeaume, S. J. McKinley, Gus Oppenheimer, J. P. Meuthen, Hugo Grimm, John E. Ritchey, Isaac Lippincott, A. Katzenstein, B. D. Burris, B. F. Burch, J. A. Geiser, George Cook, H. H. Muchall and Miss Rose Cooper.

Social Items

Mrs. Henry S. Fenimore Cooper, who is residing with her father, William Evans Guy of 10 Portland place, during Capt. Cooper's absence abroad, departed last week for a visit to Cambridge, Mass., and Cooperstown, N. Y., at which latter place she will be the guest of Capt. Cooper's relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman von Schrenk of 4139 McPherson avenue entertained with an egg nog party yesterday morning.

Miss Cora Pittman of 228 North Newstead avenue is recovering from a severe attack of influenza, which has confined her to her home for the past four weeks.

Mrs. Guido Pantaleoni of 15 Lenox place, who went East several weeks ago, has returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson W. Hagnauer of 3541 Halliday avenue have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Jane Hagnauer, to Gordon Allen Pilkington, son of Mr. Gordon Allen Pilkington of 2922 Arsenal street. Miss Hagnauer was educated at Homier Hall and Washington University. No definite date for the wedding has been set.

Miss Helen Blach of 4526 Westminster place entertained Monday with a luncheon followed by bridge at which the following guests were present: Meses Ruth and Florence Markham, Helen Barron, Lucie Ehrler, Meses Emmett Isham, Ward Smith, W. L. McManis and Alfred Kilgen.

For Colds and Grippe Follow Doctor's Advice

Ask any physician or druggist and he will tell you that the first step in the treatment of a cold, cough or gripe should invariably be "a brisk calomel: purgative, preferably the nauseous calomel, called Calotabs." This alone is often sufficient to break up a severe cold over night, or cut short an attack of gripe and possibly prevent pneumonia.

One Calotab on the tongue at bedtime with a swallow of water—that's all. No salts, no nausea, no the slightest interference with your eating, pleasures or work. Next morning your cold has vanished and your entire system is purified and refreshed. Calotabs are sold only in original sealed packages; price thirty-five cents. Recommended and guaranteed by druggists everywhere. Price refunded if you are not delighted.—ADVERTISING Look around at the men and women you meet in a single day. One chance is enough to tell the ones with plenty of rich, red blood, strength and vitality energy to back up their mental power and make them a success in whatever they undertake.

Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital, says that to help make strong, keen, red-blooded Americans there is nothing so valuable as orange iron—Nuxated Iron. It often increases the strength and endurance of weak, nervous, rundown people in two weeks' time. It is conservatively estimated that Nuxated Iron is now being used by over three million people annually, and it has been used and endorsed by such men as Hon. Leslie M. Shaw, former Secretary of the Treasury and ex-governor of Iowa; Hon. Anthony Caminetti, also United States Commissioner of Immigration; Hon. Judge G. W. Atkinson, of the Court of Claims of Washington, and others. Nuxated Iron is dispensed by all good druggists everywhere.—ADVERTISING

HOW SUBURBAN AND CITY TAXES COMPARE

Post-Dispatch Analyzes Annexation Objection--St. Louis Rate $2.35, Webster Groves $3.34.

One of the principal objections to annexation raised by Senator A. E. L. Gardner of Clayton and Kirkwood, and other opponents of the proposed legislation to make possible the taking of a vote on the annexation by St. Louis of a portion of St. Louis county, has been the increased taxes, which, they said, residents of the district taken into the city would have to pay.

That those interested in the annexation campaign may have exact information as to the tax rate of the various parts of the county, and of St. Louis, the Post-Dispatch has had compiled tax statistics of the county. The total rate in St. Louis, including all city, county and school taxes, this year is $2.35 on the $100 valuation.

All of St. Louis county, except the towns of Webster Groves, Maplewood, Kirkwood, Ferguson, Shrewsbury and Richmond Heights, has a lower tax rate than has St. Louis. In the rural districts the rate in many school districts is less than half the St. Louis rate.

On the $100 valuation the rate in the towns of the county is as follows: Webster Groves, $3.34; Maplewood, $3.17; Kirkwood, $3.24; University City, $2.19; Clayton, $2.07; Florissant, $1.27; Ferguson, $2.47; Uniondale, $2.27; Shrewsbury, $2.77; Glenridge, $2.26; Richmond Heights, $2.72.

The State tax included in the above is 18 cents on the $100 valuation, and the county tax, 69 cents of which 25 cents goes to the general revenue fund, 25 cents to the special road fund, and 9 cents for the county road bonds. The school tax varies in the different districts, in some of which it is as low as 10 cents on the $100, and in others as high as $1.60.

Proponents of the annexation plan contend that the difference in tax rate is not a proper consideration, though they admit it is one which will have considerable weight in the county. They say that the districts which have low rates do not have the city conveniences, which they say should follow annexation, and that the residents of any annexed territory would derive benefits commensurate with the increased taxes they would have to pay.

U. S. PLANS GREAT FLEETS FOR ATLANTIC AND PACIFIC

All Officers Will Be Kept on Ships Two Years and Constructive State of War Maintained.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.--To keep the navy "fit and ready" and to keep great fleets, one based on the Atlantic Coast and the other on the Pacific Coast, will be established by next summer, with war games and joint maneuvers, as a part of a regular program of training.

Secretary Daniels, in explaining his plans to the House Naval Committee, said it had received the "enthusiastic endorsement" of Admiral Benson, chief of operations.

"An Admiral who can stay long enough to stir up ambition" will be placed in command of each fleet, Daniels said, and all officers will be kept on their ships for two years. In effect, the Secretary added, there will be a war between the Atlantic and Pacific fleets, "which will so stimulate the keenness that it will make the men feel they are in actual war." Daniels told the committee that during peace times the submarine bases at San Diego, Cal.; Key West, Fla., and New London, Conn., and the air defense stations at San Diego and Pensacola, Fla., will be retained. The principal training stations for seamen in the East will be at Chicago, Hampton Roads and Newport, R. I.

WESTMINSTER COLLEGE WINS $75,000 BY RAISING $500,000

The fund of $500,000 for the endowment and equipment of Westminster College, Fulton, Mo., meeting the condition imposed by the Rockefeller Foundation for its gift of $75,000 to the institution, was obtained in the campaign ending New Year's eve, it was announced yesterday.

Miss Sidney Boyle of 5035 Lindell boulevard, daughter of the late Judge Wilbur F. Boyle, subscribed $20,000 Tuesday, this being one-half of the sum which was then lacking. The campaign was conducted with headquarters in an office in the Fulton Building, with the Rev. M. E. Melvin as manager. The exact amount subscribed will be announced later, and it is believed that it is well over $500,000, making, with the Rockefeller Foundation's gift, an accession of $75,000 to the institution's resources.

PARTISAN FIGHT THREATENS TO TIE UP LEGISLATURE

Republicans Plan to Oppose Constitutional Convention if Democrats Oppose Redistricting.

WANT TO CONTROL 7 CONGRESSIONAL SEATS

Also Want State Divided So as to Give Them More State Senators; Conference Here Next Monday.

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 2.—Republican opposition to the calling of a constitutional convention by the next Legislature, unless the Democratic majority in the State Senate will agree to a redistricting of the State in such manner that the Republicans will control seven of the 16 congressional districts and the Democrats have a majority of only one in the State Senate, has been agreed upon by Republican party leaders and influential members of the Republican State Committee.

When Republican members of the Legislature meet in conference with the State committee in St. Louis, Monday, they will be asked to pledge themselves to vote against the redistricting bills prepared by Senator Conway Elder of St. Louis as first passed by the Democrats.

The model of choosing the members of a constitutional convention is to elect two delegates from each State senatorial district, which would mean that the best the Republicans could hope for as the State is now districted would be 24 members, while the Democrats would have 44.

Democratic leaders say the attitude of the Republican organization bids fair to tie up all legislation during the coming session and, if that attitude proves to be the result of the conference, Monday, the Democrats say the blame will rest upon the Republicans.

As the Democratic Senate apparently has not the slightest intention of permitting a redistricting bill to pass, the Democrats do not believe that the Republicans will decide upon a legislative position, which, the Democrats contend, will subject the Republican organization to severe criticism if the legislative session proves to be bare of results.

But, on the other hand, it is the Republican contention that the present districting of the State is indefensible from any standpoint and that the odium will rest on the Democrats for refusing to alter it.

They point to the fact that, under the present districting, St. Louis is sorely discriminated against. There is only one member of Congress for each 256,482 residents of St. Louis and St. Louis County, while, for the remainder of the State, there is one Congressman for each 194,145 residents. There is one State Senator for each 114,587 residents of St. Louis, while there is one for each 92,386 residents of the remainder of the State.

Interest in Meeting.

The St. Louis meeting is looked upon with unusual interest by State officials and politicians, as it is the first time within many years, if ever, that a political organization has summoned all its legislative representatives together prior to a session of the Legislature to determine upon a course of action.

Party caucuses upon particular bills, of course, are frequent during a session, but for the legislators to meet to take instructions from the party committee is something new in Missouri politics. The meeting may have far-reaching results and possibly will determine that there will be a long deadlock on all important legislation, because the Republican majority in the House has it within its power to block completely legislation desired by the Senate, and in retaliation the Democratic majority in the Senate has the same power to block legislation desired by the House.

AMBITIOUS TO GET TO BERLIN

Five American Soldiers Make Break, but One Is Captured.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Tuesday, Dec. 31.—The ambition of five American soldiers to be the first of the American expeditionary forces to reach Berlin is likely to have serious results for them.

The men, who arrived here Sunday, were attached to the One hundred and Twenty-fifth Infantry Regiment now at Coblenz. They were absent without leave and unexpectedly ran into members of the American Military Commission now here in connection with the repatriation of prisoners. One of the men had been captured and is being detained while the Berlin police are seeking the other four.

Tells a Secret

Manufacturer of Famous Medicine Tells Ingredients, So Public Can Appreciate Pure, Reliable Medicine.

Many people fear to take medicine to check and abort colds, cure coughs, catarrh, etc. This fear is groundless with all the products of The Blackburn Products Co., Dayton, Ohio. Not one contains opiates, narcotics or harmful drugs. Mentho-Laxene, for coughs, colds, catarrh and all distress following a cold, is a compound of Wild Cherry, Tolu, Cacao, Grindelia, Mentho Ammonium Chloride, and alcohol sufficient to preserve and keep in solution.

Every ingredient is in concentrated form and the medicine is so strong that only ten-drop doses are to be taken in the "raw" state. But the ideal way is to make into syrup by emptying a 25-oz. bottle of Mentho-Laxene into a pint bottle and then fill the bottle with granulated sugar syrup, made by dissolving a pint of sugar in a half pint of boiling water. It is said by thousands that this makes a most effective home treatment for all cold troubles. The manufacturer guarantees it to please or money back. Sold by all good druggists.—ADV.

67 years old, 67 years broad, 67 years strong

The Largest Drug House in the World

THE same 67 years of science that have expanded the blacksmith's forge into a steel industry have likewise expanded the apothecary's mortar into a massive service bottomed on the broad base of human needs.

This cycle of magic measured by 67 years has girded Earth with rails, spanned continents with cables, conquered space with sound, and air with wings, and darkness with light that pierces solids. Marvels beyond these—it has soothed mortal suffering with anaesthesia, opened the new domains of surgery, and blessed the world with the heaven-sent genius and patient labors of Pasteur. Into this era of marvels was born the brand-new science of bacteriology; it found laws of disease and founded preventive medicine; it produced antiseptics, reduced hygiene to known principles, revolutionized materia medica, and evolved the greatest chemical movement of all times.

BORN out of the laboratory is new life. Day by day adds to the deathless conquests of the unknown in disease and its treatment paid for by the searchers with their own lives. Day by day, sometimes plodding, sometimes inspired, the ever humble servants of science pursue their tireless ways—and 67 years of patient experiment with the test-tube have made the chemist and the pharmacist co-workers in the truest sense with the physician and surgeon—servants of one cause. The same light of science ennobles the work of your intelligent druggist that sheds its rays upon the man of research or the doctor by your bedside. The druggist bent under the same study-lamp to interpret the physician's knowledge. The laborer is worthy of his hire, but the skilled apothecary is often denied even the poor rewards of commerce, much less the professional recognition he deserves.

AS medicine leans upon the laboratory for guidance, so its beneficiaries, the public, depend upon the chemistry that serves them through the druggist and the institution behind him—the source of his supply.

Manufacturing chemists, importers and jobbers for the 67 years that span the new life of drugs, the Meyer Brothers Drug Company has been the fruition of the laboratory—the laborious upbuilding of quality and the gradual broadening of service that embody the entire evolution of chemical science, out of whose test-tube have come those age-wonders which surpass the fabled bottle of the genie. Its own laboratories dedicated to science, the home of new discoveries and benefactions, its ideal has been the perfection of purity—drug-quality.

Ethics related to the ethics of medicine have made the Meyer Brothers institution the embodiment of quality from the foundations up.

Its 67 years of existence have been 67 years' demonstration of quality.

QUALITY is the one vital fundament of drugs. Drugs exist only because of the deepest human need. Like food they are primarily related to the first law of Nature—self-preservation. The world may exist or it may get sick on second-class food, but it cannot get well on second-class drugs.

Universal in its buying—selective in a world sense—perfect in equipment—scrupulously exact in the entire processing.

Quality Certified by Test preparation, packing, handling, storing and even shipping methods that it employs, it expresses in its entire function the nicety of perfection typified by the apothecary's scales—the purity of the crucible, the particularity of the microscope, the findings of the test-tube. Meyer Brother Drug Company's certified products and the "drug-quality" that its label attests have behind them the proved integrity of 67 years' service.

JUST as it embodies the entire progress in the chemical world in its supplies, the Meyer Brothers Drug Company embraces in manufacture and distribution the whole development of the modern drugstore—in sundries of first quality of every conceivable character—a cosmopolis of variety—a composite of those allurements that beckon to comfort, convenience and luxury and make the well-equipped drugstore a maze of interest that tempts you to linger.

To an order: "Ship me a drugstore" the Meyer Brothers Drug Company could supply the complete answer—on the same day the order was received—without an appreciable speeding up of the largest concern of its kind in the world. From America's central distributing point, and the heart of the drug market, the Meyer Brothers Drug Company every day does ship scores of "drugstores" in the aggregate.

EVERYWHERE measures the scope or breadth of a service that comprises quality, uniformity, unfailing supply, quick distribution—economy of price, of time, of rates from the focal shipping point. But the greatest of these—the basis of service—is quality.

Over the counters of more than 15,000 drugstores the service of the Meyer Brothers Drug Company extends—in the hand of the drug clerk that passes its certified products to the public. Upon the shelves of these many thousands of drugstores is the institution—the hand of the druggist is the hand of the institution, the symbol of help, the token of integrity, the sign of character, the hand of service.

SCHOOLS' WAR STAMP TOTAL

$455,632 Purchased in 1918; Same Campaign Plan for 1919.

Stephen M. Wagner, chairman of the War Savings Committee of the public schools, announced that a total of $455,632.50 of War Savings Stamps was purchased in 1918 by the St. Louis public schools, through the executive officers, the various departments and the teachers and pupils. Closing of the schools for 11 weeks because of the influenza ban kept the sales from reaching the half-million mark. The same plan will be followed in the 1919 campaign in the schools. Of the total sales last year, $44,690 was credited to the teachers and pupils.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, nor tolerate halfheartedness, corruption, always fight denunciations of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent, never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

JOSEPH PULITZER.
 April 10, 1907.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Race Prejudice.

Permit me, if you will, to express myself in regard to an incident which happened on a Park car Monday, Dec. 23. It was about 5:30 in the evening, when cars are crowded with persons returning from work, when a colored man boarded the car at Twelfth street. He went inside and, seeing one seat vacant, was about to sit down when a white man who was occupying the other half of the seat moved over, preventing him from doing so, and at the same time exclaiming: "You can't sit down by me."

The negro properly reported the same to the conductor, who was just across the aisle, it being the last seat in the car. The conductor refused to have anything to say in regard to the matter. A few blocks further some women got on the car, thus giving this so-called gentleman a pretext for his actions, for he promptly moved over to let one of them sit down but at the same time occupying his seat while other women stood, proving the extent of his gentlemanship.

Similar instances are constantly occurring, and we call them democracy. Negro men, always faithful to their trust, never having betrayed Old Glory, but in many instances having saved the day for her, must suffer this humiliation. Is this what our valiant sons of the darker race must suffer when they return from helping to make the world "safe for democracy?" Will our wise leaders, our great statesmen tolerate such an injustice to a race who shed the first blood for a free republic and whose roll bears not one traitor's name? Allow me to repeat in the words of the immortal Shakespeare, "Oh, justice! Thou art fled to brutish beasts and men have lost their reason."

A few days ago I read in a leading local newspaper an editorial protesting against the treatment of Jews in Poland. Was there a paper in all St. Louis brave enough to protest against the lynching of two negro men and two negro women in Mississippi last week?

May the day soon come when our grand old country no longer will tolerate such insults to a people tried and true as is the case with the American negro.

R. E. CHENEY.

The Children's Code.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
 Your paper on Dec. 24 says that the Missouri schools rank thirty-second! Does it seem to you that Missouri children are getting a square deal? Don't you think that we owe them some reparation?

Don't you think the Legislature had better make them a New Year's gift and see to it that this is changed? Of course, it will take some time to organize. So, in order to show that they mean well and want to give the children of the State a fair show, would it not be something very worth while to pass the children's code? There are a few things I read in the code that might be high on grown-up, but there is nothing in it that wouldn't be mighty good and helpful for the kids. You seem to have a "pull" with Santa Claus, try and see if you have one with the Legislature and ask them to "have a heart."

MARY ELIZABETH.

Police Efficiency.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
 I received a telegram last Sunday afternoon at my residence from one of our men who is working on a Government job at Fayetteville, N. C., saying he had just learned of the serious illness of his baby and that unless he could get a report on the child's condition that day, he would have to leave his work and return to St. Louis at once.

Our employee is a widower, but said his child was with relatives (name not given) at an address on Haven street. I had never heard of Haven street, and consulted the telephone book only to find that the telephone company no longer publishes a street directory. Then I wasted some 40 minutes visiting nearby drug stores in an effort to locate a city directory, without avail.

It finally occurred to me to try the Police Department, so I called the Chief's office and learned that Haven street is some 6000 south, whereas I live in the West End, so that it would have taken three or four hours at best for me to send a man out to get the desired information. I explained my dilemma to the officer on duty at the Chief's office and asked him if it would be possible for him to get in touch with the officer whose beat includes Haven street and have him make the necessary inquiries for me. He replied that he would be glad to do so, asked for my name and telephone number, and said he would call me later. In less than 20 minutes he rang up and stated that an officer had called at the address given, had seen the child, which had been sick but was now recovered and running around, and five minutes later a wire was on the way to the child's father appraising him of the facts.

Perhaps the pleasantest phase of the matter was the quick courtesy and readiness to help shown by them to a total stranger, as I do not know a single member of the force and none of them know me.

EMPLOYMENT FOR SOLDIERS.

There is a glaring inconsistency in the Government's opening a labor bureau in this city to find jobs for returning soldiers and at the same time throwing thousands of men out of employment by keeping the ban on the manufacture of any kind of malt beverage, non-alcoholic as well as alcoholic, without a shadow of reason.

Every reason for the ban has vanished—instead, strong reasons for rescinding it exist because conditions which led to its imposition are reversed. Instead of a shortage of coal, the mines are almost idle because the surplus cannot be disposed of. There is plenty of malt on hand, but even if there were not the only shortage of food supply is caused by Government control. There is no strain on transportation and the Government admits the labor surplus by establishing labor bureaus throughout the country to find jobs for returning soldiers, and thus in some measure ease the rapidly growing problem of unemployment.

The situation well illustrates the incompetence and the danger of government by bureaucracy. Necessary in war to concentrate national energies and resources for war making, it is an abnormal and unnecessary menace to the public in peace. In this case, while one bureau is working strenuously to find employment for idle men, another bureau, under an unnecessary, tyrannical order, is destroying great industries and abolishing opportunities for employment.

What the people of the United States want now is freedom to resume all normal peace activities. Business wants freedom to go ahead in peace industry and commerce. Individual initiative and energy should be freed from bureaucratic restraint and restriction as rapidly as possible. That New Freedom of which President Wilson said so much previous to the war is the thing most to be desired.

The one thing the Government can do is to co-operate in releasing and promoting free initiative and energy and readjusting—never stopping—industry it has dislocated by war control.

The Government Labor Bureau represents the best form of bureaucratic activity in that it is merely co-operative. It lends the use of Government organization and facilities to aid in readjustment by bringing employers and men needing work together for mutual benefit and the common good.

Business men should co-operate with the bureau by getting and keeping in touch with it and opening every possible avenue to employment. Our returning soldiers must be taken care of. They must find profitable work or become a charge on their communities. It would be abominable to reward their great sacrifices with rags, starvation and beggary.

The United States Labor Bureau here, at 902 Olive street, is in charge of Capt. F. E. Turin, whose energy and efficiency in marine recruiting is a guarantee of good work. He will be helpless, however, if the employers of St. Louis do not co-operate with him by taking back their former employees who went into service and by opening every available place for the men.

It is incumbent upon everyone to co-operate in solving this vital problem. We must provide for our soldiers.

THE OLD NAVY GAME.

The most ambitious naval program to which the United States has ever committed itself in war or peace is urged by Secretary Daniels, but with a proviso. He wants it only in the event that no general arrangement for limiting armaments is reached and no better way of ordering the world's affairs is devised than we have known in the past. And, no matter with what misgivings we might look on a further development of navalism, no matter with what regret we might see hundreds of millions of dollars diverted to the shipbuilders and munition makers which might otherwise be devoted to education and good roads and scientific research and social progress, the Secretary's position is logical. A failure at Versailles would contribute to a tremendous sentiment at Washington for the very program he proposes.

Notice is served on the rest of the world that if the old navy game—which is somewhat different from and more expensive than the old army game—is to continue, we shall sit in with better cards, backed by higher stakes, than any other nation. Our navy, now the second, can be made the first at a cost which we could bear with comparative ease, but which would be intolerable to the debt-burdened peoples of Europe.

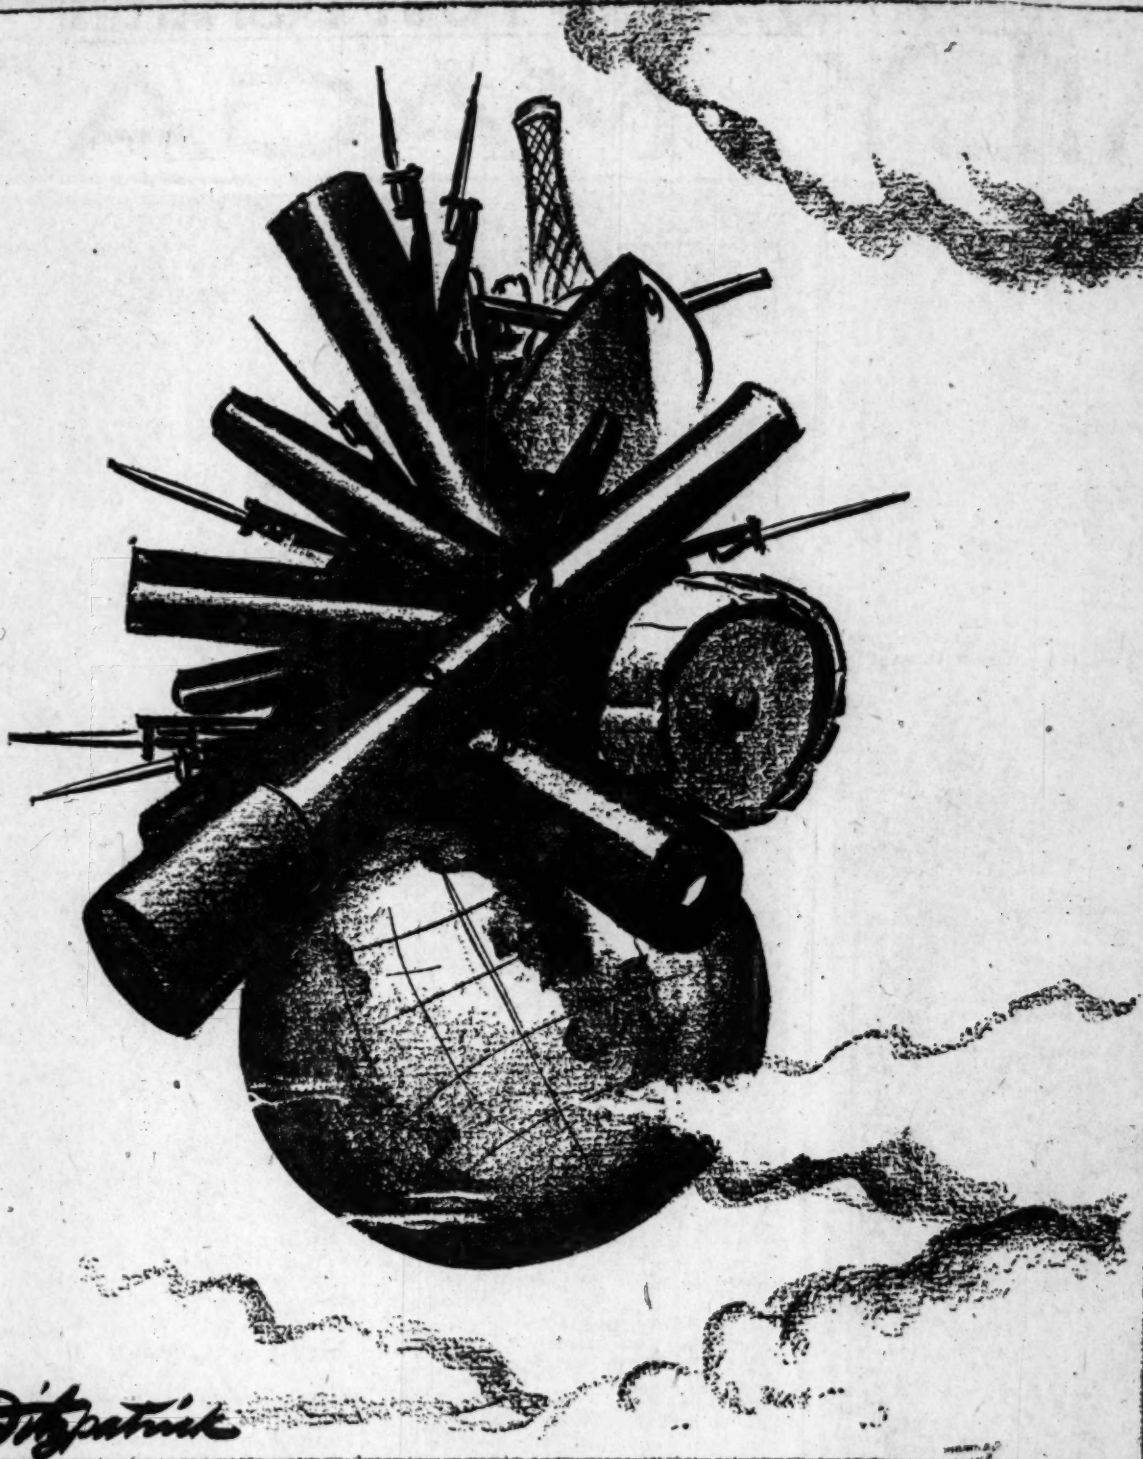

A GREAT POLITICAL PARTY'S END.

Not more than seven candidates, and probably only six of the Irish National Party, were chosen for Parliament in the December elections in the British Isles. At the last prior general election, held just eight years before, in December, this party elected a total of 75 out of 103 members apportioned to Ireland.

This virtual disappearance of a political party of great aims, partially realized in brilliant achievements, will not be a matter of indifference in the history of representative government. Its inception is traced to a conference held in 1870 which declared for the "establishment of an Irish Parliament with full control over our domestic affairs." As a home-rule party under the remarkable leadership of Parnell and Redmond it embodied for 48 years the hopes of the freedom-loving people of Ireland and the greater body of the Irish nation resident outside of Ireland. Its adherents invented a new form of popular resistance and gave the word boycott to the English language. It taught minorities in legislative assemblies the resources of a new and effective technique of obstruction to the tyranny of majorities and imitation elsewhere of its successes made the adoption of closure rules a necessity in nearly all countries where popular government prevails, our own Senate being the last of the national chambers to yield.

It found Ireland grievously afflicted with a feudal system of land tenure and destroyed it, gaining for Ireland reforms as yet denied to England. It supplied the votes that enabled a coalition to rule the British empire for more than a decade, enacting a vast program of remedial legislation, and still this party was not able to obtain the actual operation of home rule for the Irish, though it did force the enactment of a home rule law. What mere minority group in any representative body in the world ever accomplished so much?

Its leaders were men of great patience, steadfast for half a century in the pursuit of constitutional methods. Betrayal by their Liberal associates at Westminster lost them the confidence of their own people at home. With the Sinn Feiners disillusioned as to the possibilities of constitutional agitation and controlling 73 seats, what will happen? Several times before disillusionment as to constitutional obstruction has been recorded in Irish history. What followed constitutes a precedent that makes this a time of grave anxiety for Ireland and people of Irish descent.

THE WARNING OF 1871.

From the Manchester Guardian.
 MR. LLOYD GEORGE said a wise word yesterday when he warned us against following the German precedent of 1871. There is, according to him, to be no "Alsace-Lorraine" in the coming peace. The folly of the Alsace-Lorraine policy was that it perpetuated bitterness, erected a permanent monument of defeat on the very borders of France and made inevitable the 40 years of armed peace that ultimately broke into the recent war. The wickedness of the policy was that some parts of this folly were intentional. There were those who wished France to remain hostile in order that fear might keep South Germany loyal to Prussia. There were those who were resolved that France should arm in order to justify German armament and the continued ascendancy of the Prussian general staff. No such policy or wickedness seriously influences any of the allies, but fear and resentment remain the most potent motives, and if any "Alsace-Lorraine" is to be averted it will only be by a wise and self-controlled statesmanship. Mr. Lloyd George does not in fact tell us how he proposes to avert it. Indeed, while in one sentence contending against anything that makes permanent peace impossible, he is in the next sentence arguing for courses which would go a very long way in that direction. Take, for example, the exclusion of Germans, without regard to character and personal record, from this country. If this means that Germans are to be permanently excluded from peaceful intercourse with the rest of the world, it is a condition clearly incompatible with assured peace. No people would for long acquiesce in such isolation and disgrace. They will struggle against it, and, feeling themselves already humiliated, will go forward the more recklessly to win back their position by force or fraud. There is no peace on those lines, but only the permanent threat of revolt and the permanent machinery of repression.

Take against the exaction of indemnities to the utmost of Germany's capacity. It is most just that Germany should pay full compensation for injury to civilians, as provided in the peace terms. But the indemnities now talked of go far beyond this, and people do not hesitate to speak of Germany working off a debt of colossal magnitude through a long term of years. What they do not at the same time explain to the public is that to exact such a debt requires an army of occupation, and that if it takes 30 years to pay off the debt our soldiers must be in Germany for 30 years. This is not what our people want. Still less is it the way to end war and arrive at a stable peace. One of the bad results of electioneering at such a time as this is that the most extreme views of military hold the platform. Whoever dares to hint that an extravagant demand may not be conceived in the best interests of the nation is at once dubbed pacifist and pro-German. Patriotism is measured by violence of language and extravagance of proposal. But if we want peace we must do something of our emotions, and if we want to satisfy our emotions we must bid good-bye to the prospect of peace. That is the alternative which Mr. Lloyd George should have put before the women yesterday.

POLES NEED ALLIED HELP IF BOLSHIEVISM IS TO BE CRUSHED, DR. DILLON SAYS

Correspondent Analyzes the Situation on Germany's Eastern Frontier and Tells of Difficulties Confronting Pilsudski.

By E. J. DILLON,
 A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, Jan. 1.—Bolshevism is fascinating the gaze of the civilized world. It is recognized as universal danger by the European Governments, whose efforts are being directed to its removal. These efforts may appreciably modify their general policy in a direction opposed to doctrinalism and reconcile them to the achievement of practical rather than ideal solutions. One-half of Europe already has been ruined by it, and every care must be taken that the remaining half shall not be blighted by a moral disease more baneful still.

At present all Eastern Europe is threatened by this anarchist scourge and Poland more imminently than any other; hence, the allied Governments are considering measures to rescue the new state from this menace. Menaced by Germany on one side and by the Bolsheviks on the other, Poland is destitute of adequate means for self-defense. When the armistice was concluded it possessed only 6000 recognized troops and 10,000 secretly organized militia-men. Today, its army, imperfectly trained, numbers some 50,000 men, but is devoid of sufficient arms, ammunition, food or money. It is a political, rather than a military force, and cannot cope with the Germans and the Bolsheviks, who are well supplied with funds and are zealously agitating among the population.

Allies Foresee Danger.

When the German troops evacuated the territory, Bolshevik bands occupied their place. Foreseeing this danger the allied Governments stipulated that evacuation should be deferred until an opportune moment and that they should have access to these territories in order to supply the population with food and maintain order; but the German revolution nullified the first stipulation and lack of energy neutralized the other. In six provinces German troops, tainted with Bolshevism, remained, and having organized soldiers' councils, pillaged and burned private property, and massacred the inhabitants on their march into Eastern Prussia. More to the east, well-armed Bolshevik troops followed the Germans and completed the work of destruction.

The Poles, on the other hand, were unable to raise a sufficiently powerful army to hinder their advance. Thus all the territory east of the ancient kingdom of Poland is exposed to Bolshevik invasion and the kingdom itself is menaced by the Bolshevik revolution, owing to continuous Russian propaganda and to the release of nearly 2,000,000 prisoners of war. These prisoners, who can be converted by the railroads or fed by the authorities, are marching through the country robbing and burning. At the same time, a large number of Poles who were forced to work in Germany are being sent home, where, finding neither occupation nor food, they are being drawn into the revolutionary vortex.

Poles in Need of Help.

Hitherto the bulk of the Polish population has stemmed the anarchist tide, but unless adequate help speedily arrives, catastrophe is inevitable. In Austrian Poland the Bolshevik influences have found an uncongenial soil, but Ruthenian chieftains, who are being sent home, are ravaging the country. They seized Lemberg from which they have been since expelled, but Polish troops still occupy some neighboring districts. In German Poland, with the exception of Silesia, where the population is on the verge of joining hands with Rumania to preserve Europe from the spread of Bolshevism contagion. The Polish situation, which is the most disquieting, is now under consideration of the allies, who, it is believed, will take energetic action at once. Gen. Pilsudski, who is at the head of the Socialist Government in Warsaw, is sending a personal deputation to the Polish committee in Paris, which may arrive tomorrow, for the purpose of forming a national Government of representatives of all the parties.

$150,000,000 LOST BY U. S. ON RAILROADS

1918 Broke All Records for Expenses—R. S. Lovett Opposes U. S. Ownership.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—The Government's loss in operating the railroads in 1918 is calculated by railroad administration officials at less than $150,000,000. This represents the difference between the aggregate amount the Government will be compelled to pay railroad companies as rental for the use of their properties—the so-called guaranteed return—and the net income which the Government will receive from the railroads. It will take six months more of receipts from the increased freight rates to permit the Government to recoup its losses, officials believe. If Congress does not approve the proposed five-year extension of Federal control, and as a consequence President Wilson carries out his announced intention of returning the roads to private management at an early date, the Government's loss will not be made up.

For the railroads, 1918 was a year which broke all records of revenue and expenses. Although receipts were nearly 20 per cent greater, expenses were even more. In the 16 months ending Nov. 1,

Dr. Edward J. Dillon is one of the most distinguished and scholarly of British journalists. For 30 years he has been the Petrograd correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph, and it has been said of him that he is more thoroughly acquainted with the secret policies of the Foreign Office in Europe than any other living man. The Post-Dispatch, by special arrangement with the London Daily Telegraph, will print Dr. Dillon's articles during the Versailles council and, because of his intimate relations with the statesmen of the world, who are gathered there, his contributions are certain to help greatly in the understanding of what goes on at the greatest political conference in the world's history.

famine, perfect order reigns, but as the allies did not make the demand for the evacuation of that province, it is still under the domination of German troops who are tainted with the revolutionary spirit and have forbidden the population to take part in the coming election for a constituent assembly.

The temper of the Germans may be inferred from the insult they put upon the American flag when Paderewski entered Posen. The right stipulated by the allies of access to Poland through Danzig and the Vistula has never been enforced, and yet, unless it is exercised, no effective assistance could be given to the Polish population. Time presses. Documents received here prove that the Germans are massing 800,000 troops on the eastern frontier, exclusive of volunteers known as the army of home defense. They are to be quartered in Posen and other parts of Prussian Poland, unless the allies intervene to prevent it.

Allies Consider Question.
 The allies have been urgently requested to adopt before they promote the late measures which, by safeguarding Polish interests, will promote the cause of peace. The principal measures suggested are that allied troops should reoccupy the territory evacuated by the Germans and form a cordon along the frontier until the Polish General, Haller, who commands two well-trained divisions in France, can be transported to Danzig, the division utilizing the two railways, one connecting that city with Thorn and Posen, the other connecting it with Danzig.

The Poles then could organize a strong army by taking a sufficient number of recruits from the population and joining hands with Rumania to preserve Europe from the spread of Bolshevism contagion. The Polish situation, which is the most disquieting, is now under consideration of the allies, who, it is believed, will take energetic action at once. Gen. Pilsudski, who is at the head of the Socialist Government in Warsaw, is sending a personal deputation to the Polish committee in Paris, which may arrive tomorrow, for the purpose of forming a national Government of representatives of all the parties.

Loose Ends of U. S. Ownership.

Opposition to Government ownership of railroads, on the ground that competition in service and facilities, but not in rates, should be preserved, was voiced by Robert S. Lovett, when his resignation as director of the division of capital expenditures of the Railroad Administration became effective today. After asserting in a statement that "there is nothing so essential to the financial peace and the commercial and industrial welfare of this country as a definite governmental national policy," Lovett declared that the necessity for exclusive national control, as against state regulation, was now too obvious for discussion, and that "the only debatable question is whether such control shall be through Government ownership or by exclusive Federal regulation of private ownership."

In his reasons for opposing Government ownership, Lovett asserted that "if we carefully analyze the relative merits of control by nationalization and the advantages from competition in service facilities, I believe we will find that the latter will be very much better as a national policy."

He added that he also objected to Government ownership because the opportunity it would offer "for promoting political ambitions would be a perpetual national scandal and expense to the Government to serious financial burdens."

Dorothy Dix Says if Love Is Insanity No One in Love Should Seek a Cure

Writer Declares That Undoubtedly a Person in Love Does Manifest Many Signs of Disordered Intellect—They See Charms and Grace, She Avers, That Do Not Exist.

By DOROTHY DIX.

IT is often said that this is an unromantic age. Conclusive proof of the truth of this statement is found in the fact that a young woman in the West has actually been arrested and tried for lunacy, simply because she was in love.

This girl became enamored of a handsome young preacher, and instead of letting concealment pray upon her demerol cheek after the lackadaisical manner of the maiden of the past, she followed the tactics of the maiden girl and boldly went to the object of her affection and told him of her love.

UNFORTUNATELY, the gentleman in question did not reciprocate her tender sentiments. Neither did being wooed make a bit with him, and when the young woman continued to refuse to take "no" for an answer, and to pursue him with burning love missives and welcome calls, he had her arrested on a writ of lunacy.

Happily, the Judge was a man of sentiment. Sitting in Cupid's court, as well as the court of law, he upheld the sanity of love and declared that while it might be indiscreet for a woman to pop the question, it was no indication of mental aberration.

Undoubtedly, an individual in love does manifest many signs of disordered intellect. They have hallucinations in which they see charms and graces that are nonexistent in some other ordinary and commonplace male or female. They baffle strange and incoherent nonsense, and commit acts of which they would be utterly incapable in lucid moments.

These phenomena of love are so common, and they are so generally held to indicate that the person in love is not mentally accountable that the lover is universally treated with indulgent pity that we bestow upon a halfwit.

Also many a husband and wife contemplating their yokemates and wondering how they happened to pick out the particular misfits that they did, have felt that they could only account for the blunder they spared the peace and quiet of the growing household, for he had broken the window, knocked over a heavy chair, swept a marble bust of Julius Caesar from its pedestal, and dropped his "manicure set," all within the brief space of time required to wiggle a passage to the stairs.

When he had been told that no idea; she only knew that he stood swaying in the dim light, bellowing for Percy to come and be beaten up, according to promise. Percy, being asleep in the barn, heard not, and finally Frisco managed his way up stairs, Charlotte again retreating to her room.

She remained there until breakfast was served. During that meal the usually mild Mr. Remington voiced querulous and long complaint against disturbances in the night, declaring that his experimental work was rudely interrupted, that he could only pursue his hobby satisfactorily while others slept, and that he hoped, at least, there would be peace during the day, so that he could catch up with his slumbers.

Charlotte left her breakfast half finished. Presently came a telephone call for her, just as she had arranged her notes for the day's work. It was Mrs. Smythe on the wire.

"Oh, Charlotte dear, have you heard?"

"Heard what?" answered Charlotte.

"About the terrible thing that happened at my party? Thieves! Yes, really. A number of my guests were robbed, and I'm nearly distracted over it. I wanted to find out if you had suffered. No? I'm so glad. We don't know who it was; we're sure there was nobody there without invitation. We had detectives out from the city last night, as soon as they learned of it; they said it must have been professionals. They seem quite sure they can discover them, too. Of course, I hope they can. But even if they don't, I don't think the disgrace of the thing. Yes; the detectives are here still. They're going to make a very thorough investigation."

"I should think so," faltered Charlotte. "How shocking!"

"Isn't it, dear? Well, at any rate, I'm so glad you're not a sufferer. Nor that charming Mr. Wright of yours? No? I'm glad of that, too. He strikes me as clever. Perhaps if the detectives fail, I'll call on him for advice. May I? He just seems like a man who would have good judgment about such matters. Well, goodbye, dear. When they've made any arrests, I'll let you know. I'm sure you'll be interested."

Interested! Charlotte was even appalled. She tried to forget impending disaster by a determined attack upon her notes, retreating to the library and closing all the doors. Thomas interrupted her by appearing with the mail. It made a surprising armful. As he dumped it upon the table he shook his head in a perplexed way.

"There's some mistake. Miss Charlotte," he said, wagging his head. "Nearly all of the letters are addressed to some lady that doesn't live here. A Miss—er—Miss Folansbee."

"Never mind, Thomas; just leave the mail here, please."

When Thomas had departed, Charlotte reached for a handful of the nearest letters and began to examine them. The very first was addressed to "Miss Antoinette Folansbee."

A SERIES of events, beginning at two o'clock in the morning of the following day, decided Charlotte that a time for drastic measures had arrived. The events not only distracted her sleep, but later served completely to distract her mind from the play, which had now reached a point where the imagination and the pen must suffer no interruption in their co-operative labors.

The day, for Charlotte, opened when Boston Fanny returned to the house two hours past midnight, with much gay laughter, in which a strong masculine note was audible. Ensnared fifteen minutes of boisterous conversation on the porch before Mr. Mitchell's big car removed him from the premises.

Fanny, possessing no latch-key, thereupon placed a dainty thumb upon the push-button and leaned against it, so that the bell rang in uninterrupted clamor until sleepy old Thomas shuffled into the hall and admitted the late-comer.

Nor did it improve Charlotte's temper when, after having crept out into the upper hall for better observation, she saw Fanny chuck Thomas under his double chin, poke him in the ribs with a jeering finger, kiss him on the end of his nose, and tell him he was a cute old dodo.

INSTEAD of buying lard, clear suet may be purchased for half the price and tried out into a tasteless, odorless fat for hot breads, cakes or anything which requires a butter substitute, as well as for frying. It has the advantage of keeping almost indefinitely in a cool place, so that three or four pounds may be done at one time and kept in a crock always ready for use.

Cut in small pieces and remove fibrous parts, or put through the meat chopper, and set on the fire to melt in a double boiler. It may take all day, but if a double boiler is used it prevents burning and does not require watching, and only a very low flame is necessary. Pour off as it melts into a crock, and a fine, clear fat is ready for many uses.

Egg substitute is very good in custards and cakes and a great saving to the purse, as a 35-cent package takes the place of three dozen eggs.

Another useful article for the nurse is the sterilized cloth window-ventilator, which saves doctors' bills by keeping out dirt, dust and germs while letting in the fresh air. They can be bought in different sizes to fit any window, and besides obviating the danger of colds and rheumatism, they are a great help in the bathroom window they serve also as a curtain, being opaque.

A maple substitute proves to be all that is claimed for it, and to make a quart of syrup costs only about 24 cents.

To save matches use the "spark lighter" made for the gas range, which costs little, but saves time, patience and a litter of dead matches around the stove.

A fine linen nightgown usually wears out around the neck and sleeves while the lower part is still solid. By cutting off the top to the desired length a serviceable working apron can be made of it, or with the addition of a frill of lace or blind embroidery it can be turned into a short petticoat.

Wheat, the wisest human being in the universe, and that she has snatched him away from every other woman, that turns this dull old world into a Paradise for every girl who is in love with him. Well, if this proposition interests you, answer by return mail. The picture showing you in the motor boat is O. K. It shows so much of the shore that I can recognize the place—Hempstead Harbor. But if you decide you want to marry me, you won't have time for any motor boat, because I need a woman who is willing to help work the farm and take care of my six children.

Charlotte drew a deep breath and rose unsteadily to her feet. She clutched the edge of the table for an instant and passed a hand across her eyes. Then, rallying, she crossed the library with a determined stride and fell on her knees before a chest of drawers. Pulling out the lower one, she lifted from it several bulky photograph holders. Selecting the top one and tossing the others on the floor, she opened it with feverish fingers.

All her sickening fears were realized in an instant. It had been rifled. Not completely robbed of its contents, but there was a hand across her eyes. Then, rallying, she crossed the library with a determined stride and fell on her knees before a chest of drawers. Pulling out the lower one, she lifted from it several bulky photograph holders. Coiffure

How to Arrange It

By MILDRED LODIEWICK

THE woman who brushes her hair until it is smooth, shiny, and fluffy to handle, and then arranges it in some becoming manner which individualizes her particular type of beauty, is indeed a mark for admiration. The bright lights that sparkle in the evening stream first on her head, then on her shoulders, and then on her pretty frock—but her head first, remember! Therefore is the wise woman ever conscientious in this part of her grooming.

Most every woman has some regular way of arranging her hair, which she deems more becoming and practices every day, but there is no more reason for a woman not changing the style of her hair dressing than there is for her not changing the style of her clothes. Both contribute equally in lending the enchantment of variety to one's personality.

For the many festive occasions which women will enjoy this season, I am showing these distinctive arrangements. Each one holds a modest decoration, placed at interesting places. At the left a jeweled bar or comb confines the bangs or a soft puff of hair at the front, while the remaining hair is swirled about the head. Rather long locks are necessary for such an arrangement. In the center, however, is an excellent suggestion for the woman with short, fluffy hair. A semi-circular shaped pin, like the popular bouquet or veil pin, is used effectively to hold the hair at the back so that it may escape in a pretentious loop that lends height to a low front arrangement. The hair may be either combed directly back or parted on the side and dropped over the forehead. At the right is a suitable suggestion for a miss, with the hair puffed at the sides, but more to the back and higher on the head than is popular at the moment. A soft figure eight, not completely the coiffure, but an enormous filigree tortoise-shell comb is thrust in one side, as shown, to lend almost the effect that a large ribbon bow would achieve. It is especially youthful and pretty.

truck on Long Island. It was a thoroughly unsentimental commination, but it contained this comment:

Well, if this proposition interests you, answer by return mail. The picture showing you in the motor boat is O. K. It shows so much of the shore that I can recognize the place—Hempstead Harbor. It's only 10 miles from my farm. But if you decide you want to marry me, you won't have time for any motor boat, because I need a woman who is willing to help work the farm and take care of my six children.

The Sandman Story for Tonight

By MRS. F. A. WALKER.

How the Toys Were Bathed.

THE Little Mistress of the playroom had been told by her mother that a daily bath was a very necessary thing and that once in a while everything needed to be given a bath.

The Little Mistress had watched the cleaning of the house by her mother and the maid and it came to her mind that her playroom must be in need of a bath, at least all her toys, for never since she could remember had they ever been bathed.

So when her mother was busy up to the playroom she went and proceeded to give the toys a bath.

And that was the reason when Jack-in-a-box popped out his head that night he gasped as he looked about the playroom.

"What has happened?" asked Jack-in-a-box as he looked at Betty. "Everybody and everything in the playroom has had a bath," explained Betty. "I guess the Little Mistress forgot you, Jack; living in a box as you do, you don't need it."

"A bath," repeated Jack. "What is that?"

"Oh, dear, don't you know?" replied Betty. "I suppose you don't, though, being just a toy you never played at being bathed."

"It means being put into a tub of water, but never before in all my life did my Little Mistress really and truly put me in water before today; she just pretended, you know."

TEDDY BEAR lifted his head and then dropped into the chair on which he had leaned. "It was awful," he said. "I feel inside like a lump of lead; my sawdust is soaked."

"Your sawdust is soaked," said Calico Cat. "Suppose you were stuffed with cotton as I am! I never expect to be dry all through again."

"I was rubbed with towel after I was taken out of the tub."

"So was I," said Bunny Rabbit, "and look at me; my ears are off and my coat is so tight I feel as if I would burst if I moved."

"Jack," said Teddy Bear, "I shall never again think you are unfortunate because you live in that box of yours and have no feet. It is all that saved you, as Betty Doll said, and you should be thankful, for I doubt if any of the rest of us will ever again feel as we did before the bath."

Jack looked at his gay-colored coat and at the colors on his box. Then he felt of his whiskers. "I guess you are right, Teddy," he said, "and if I am not mistaken a bath would have ruined me and my box as well."

"These whiskers are glued on and so is my coat, and besides losing the color I should have lost my coat and whiskers, too."

Jack-in-a-box slid into his house for the first time since he came to the playroom to live, thinking he was the luckiest toy there just as the sun shined in through the window.

He sat crumpled for a while, mechanically turning the pages of the photograph holder and looking at the blank spaces, each of which she could unerringly fill from memory. Her first emotions were those of shame and humiliation—particularly when she remembered the pictures that had once filled the blanks. Why had she ever stored away such silly treasures—she, a woman with a mission? Then came moments of despair and a mad impulse for flight and somewhere to hide. And then came rage—red rage at the Walrus.

The rage brought Charlotte to her feet with a bound and shot a fine color into her cheeks. She walked swiftly to the library table and pushed a button. Thomas answered.

"Find Mr. Wilkes at once and send him here—bring him!"

She paced steadily back and forth while Thomas was absent on his errand, but came to a rigid and uncompromising halt as the Walrus came.

Sayings of Mrs. Solomon.

By Helen Rowland.

VERILY my Daughter, as obvious as a missing front tooth, more un-deceptive than heaped hair, more fragrant than a profitter's "explanations," is the vanity of a woman.

For she taketh no pains to conceal it! Nay, though sudden death threatened her, she would powder her nose before putting on a gas mask, and take her hair out of curlers before turning in a fire alarm.

But the vanity of a MAN, who can fathom it? For it lieth deeper than his consciousness, and he knoweth not himself that he is vulnerable.

Lo, I met a hero from Chateau-Thierry, and I fell down and worshipped his medals and his shoulder straps, and sang the praises of his bravery, and applauded his deeds of glory. And he answered me in monosyllables, and seemed exceeding fatigued.

But when I praised his taste in LITERATURE and urged him to read aloud his original verses and admired his "style," he WAS smitten and surrendered unconditionally and begged permission to call again.

Behold, I ate beside a Great Author at a banquet. And I sought to flatter him saying:

"How fortunate am I, to shine thus, in thy reflected glory. For I have read thy latest book, and I simply could not TEAR myself away from it. How marvelous is thine imagery, and how wonderful thy skill!"

And he gazed down upon me wearily and turned to the woman upon his other hand, as one should say "Ho-hum!"

But when the jazz-players struck up and I praised his DANCING and marveled at his agility and his fancy steps, he was overcome with my fascination, and could not be pried from mine elbow.

Lo, when the Radical called upon me, I led him to my drawing room with great pomp and ceremony, and got out all my BEST silver, and brewed him tea in the samovar.

And all was proper and decorous and SO chic! And he was highly flattered and enjoyed himself mightily.

But when the son of the Plutocrat called, I hailed him from afar, crying:

"Come into the KITCHEN thou and help me to prepare the dinner, for I am bereft of an handmaiden!"

And he tried on a bungalow apron and did as he was bidden and was highly flattered and enjoyed himself mightily.

Go to! Many men have I known who could not sew on a button or knit a helmet; but of them who could not COOK a meal "better than a CHEF" not one!

Yes, many a man have I met who could not run a motor car or his OWN WIFE; but of them who could not tell the Government how to run the Country, not one!

Many men have I met who could not be flustered by a wall of German machine guns; but of them who could not be flustered by a smile from a cabaret chorus girl, not one!

And so it goeth!

Salah.

No Encouragement.

FOR the first three years of their married life the wife's mother had lived with the young couple. Then one morning without even stopping to pack, hubby fled.

The young wife rushed upstairs and told the news to her mother. "I suppose some nasty, low woman is responsible for his leaving you," said the latter.

"Yes, mother," said the sorrowing wife. "There was a woman in it."

"Her name?" demanded the good

SPRIT OF HESITATION
SHOWN IN BUSINESS

Merchants Optimistic, But Buy
Only to Meet Needs, Say
Federal Reserve Agents.

A spirit of hesitation is apparent in many lines of business in the Eighth Federal Reserve District, due to the termination of the war, according to the monthly report on conditions issued by William McC. Martin, chairman of the board and Federal Reserve Agent.

"Business men, as a rule," the report states, "are optimistic regarding the future, but are buying only for their immediate needs, anticipating a readjustment of prices."

"The cancellation of war contracts has affected many concerns in this district, and they are now engaged in restoring their enterprises to a peace basis. This is especially true of the iron and steel industry."

However, general business is being greatly helped by the lifting of Government restrictions. Manufacturers of building and roofing materials are making preparation for a big spring business. Candy manufacturers are also looking forward to increased business, now that they may receive an ample supply of sugar.

Manufacturers of boots and shoes continue busy, but are operating cautiously. Many have called in their salesmen, as they have already sufficient orders on hand to carry them for several months.

Retail merchants generally report a good demand for merchandise. While Christmas shopping has been hampered by the restrictions imposed to combat the influenza epidemic, yet a large volume of business is reported. An interesting statement is made by a department store that "customers are buying evening dresses again, and altogether they are more cheerful and are buying accordingly."

Collections Generally Good.
"Collections, as a rule, are reported good, except in some of the southern portions of the district. Here cotton has been slow in moving. However, the cotton situation is being materially helped by the removal of many of the restrictions hampering the export shipments of cotton. This relieves the cotton buyer from borrowing, since a through bill of lading enables him to reduce most of his transactions to cash."

"During the past month the demand for money in this district has continued good, but not quite so strong as during the previous month. This is reflected in the accommodations extended member banks by the Federal Reserve Bank. On Nov. 30 the Federal Reserve Bank held member banks' paper amounting to $82,169,338, whereas on Dec. 21 it held only $69,883,746, showing that $12,285,592 had been liquidated. The bulk rate to customers continued at 6 per cent in the large centers, but is not so firm as a month ago. In the outlying districts it is somewhat higher."

Agricultural Situation.
"Brokers report an increased demand for commercial paper from the country banks. However, very few of the large city banks are in the market. Some brokers report that they are experiencing difficulty in obtaining a sufficient amount of paper of the best names. The rate ranges from 5 1/2 per cent to 5 3/4 per cent."

"Agricultural conditions in this district continue favorable. The winter wheat in excellent, fall features have been fine, and livestock generally is in good condition. According to the Government's estimate of Dec. 1, the acreage sown in winter wheat in this district greatly exceeds the acreage last year. The condition of the winter wheat in this district was estimated to be 98 per cent on Dec. 1, which is 12.5 per cent better than last year and 9.6 per cent better than the 10-year average."

"According to the Government's estimate of Dec. 11, the cotton in Arkansas, Mississippi, Missouri and Tennessee will yield a total of 2,545,000 bales of 500 pounds each. This is 64,118 bales more than last year and 96,965 bales more than the 10-year average."

Stockyards' Report.
"The report of the St. Louis National Stockyards for December shows a slight increase in the receipts of cattle and a large decrease in the receipts of horses and mules, in comparison with the corresponding month last year. Substantial increases are shown in the receipts of sheep and hogs. In the shipments of live stock, increases are shown in cattle and hogs, and decreases in sheep and horses and mules. Substantial increases are also shown in the receipts and shipments of hogs, in comparison with the previous month this year. The shortage of corn in some localities is forcing many unfinished hogs to market."

"Postal receipts for November in Louisiana and Little Rock show increases, in comparison with the same month last year, but in St. Louis and Memphis slight decreases are shown. The receipts from St. Louis, Louisville and Little Rock also show decreases, in comparison with the previous month this year."

More Building Expected.
"Reports for November from leading cities in this district showed decreases in the number of building permits issued, in comparison with the corresponding month last year and also in comparison with the previous month this year. However, since the lifting of Government restrictions, renewed interest has been manifested in building and real estate, and increased activity in this line is anticipated."

"The supply of labor is becoming more ample in this district. Not only is this due to the release of soldiers from the army, but also to the release of many employees who have been engaged in the manufacture of Price Drops Sharply on Announcement of Receiver for the Company.

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—There was a note of cheerfulness in the stock market at the opening of trading today and sharp fractional gains were scored by many issues. The steel shares and coppers reflected the best buying, although the rails were in fairly good request. Outside interest in the market was fairly broad.

The annual report of the London Bankers' Clearing House, says that the total turnover in 1918 was $21,193,000,000, an increase of $2,764,000,000 as compared with 1917, and an increase of $4,761,000,000 on the pre-war record year, 1913.

The present increase is due to heavy Government borrowings and disbursements, also to increased prices of commodities. Despite the daily movements of large sums owing to constant purchases of securities and rapid disbursements by the Government, the money market has been under such control that there has been no indication of any stringency of rates. WHILE CHRISTMAS SHOPPING HAS BEEN HAMPERED BY THE RESTRICTIONS IMPOSED TO COMBAT THE INFLUENZA EPIDEMIC, YET A LARGE VOLUME OF BUSINESS IS REPORTED. AN INTERESTING STATEMENT IS MADE BY A DEPARTMENT STORE THAT "CUSTOMERS ARE BUYING EVENING DRESSES AGAIN, AND ALTOGETHER THEY ARE MORE CHEERFUL AND ARE BUYING ACCORDINGLY."
